

Editorial for Autumn Edition of the SOCIETAS ET IURISPRUDENTIA 2020

Dear readers and friends,

let me introduce the third issue of the eighth volume of SOCIETAS ET IURISPRUDENTIA, an international scientific online journal for the study of legal issues in the interdisciplinary context.

The journal SOCIETAS ET IURISPRUDENTIA is issued under the auspices of the Faculty of Law of the Trnava University in Trnava, Slovakia, and it thematically focuses mainly on socially relevant interdisciplinary relations connected with issues of public law and private law at the national, transnational and international levels, while accepting and publishing exclusively original, hitherto unpublished contributions.

The journal is issued in an electronic on-line version four times a year, regularly on March 31st, June 30th, September 30th and December 31st, and it offers a platform for publication of contributions in the form of separate papers and scientific studies as well as scientific studies in cycles, essays on current social topics or events, reviews on publications related to the main orientation of the journal and also information or reports connected with the inherent mission of the journal.

The website of the journal SOCIETAS ET IURISPRUDENTIA offers the reading public information in the common graphical user interface as well as in the blind-friendly interface designed for visually handicapped readers, both parallel in the Slovak as well as English languages. In both languages the journal's editorial office provides also feedback communication through its own e-mail address. At the same time, the website of the journal offers readers due to the use of dynamic responsive web design accession and browsing by using any equipment that allows transmission of information via the global Internet network.

The current, third issue of the eighth volume of the journal SOCIETAS ET IURISPRUDENTIA offers a total of six separate scientific studies as well as one review of notable scientific publication written in three different languages – in the English, Czech and Slovak languages. Within the section “Studies”, the very first study brings a very comprehensive and detailed analytical-synthetic view of the extremely current issues of liability of platforms as the contract parties, the intermediaries and the secondary liable subjects, especially in the wider area of the European Union. The following study thoroughly analyses, clarifies and from the point of view of the Polish, German and Slovak criminal laws compares as well as exemplarily explains the questions of liability for an intentional crime as a consequence of a traffic offense. The third study concentrates on a detailed systematic clarification as well as in-depth analysis of the issue of further development of the Roman law in the Eastern Europe in the period since the death of Justinian the Great until the fall of the Byzantine Empire. The next study offers readers an extraordinary detailed and systematic definition as well as well-founded explanation of all the key processes associated with the introduction and the complex legal solution of a completely new and essentially current problem area in (not only) the Czech labour law – of the issues related to the coronavirus pandemics. The fifth study presents, streamlines, analyses in detail and clarifies the questions of discrimination against women in the German electoral laws and the political life itself, specifically in terms of the identifiable unconstitutionality of countervailing measures in the (not only) Thuringian electoral act. The final, sixth study very precisely analyses and deeply explains the fundamental questions of the polysemy of the term of complaint in the legal doctrine, especially from the central point of view of the influence of the Roman law on the canon law. The section “Reviews”, placed at the end of the current issue, offers review of a new unique Bulgarian scientific publication aimed at the area of administrative services.
